6. _____ The government has not given the city money for these projects yet.

Activity

Retell the story you just heard with your partner. What are the proposed projects all about?

Language Focus: Subject- Verb Agreement

A simple sentence structure is subject-verb-object – for example; The dogs ran home.

Subject verb object

What is a subject? A subject in a sentence is found in the first part of a sentence/clause, before the main verb and it refers to a person, place or thing that the sentence is about.

Singular subjects “it, he, or she” take a verb with an –s on the end. E.g. It runs quickly. He likes bread.

Singular subject pronouns that get –s on their verbs	Examples
It	The apartment is big. (It is big) The bus is yellow. (It is yellow)
He	A man goes shopping. (He goes shopping)
She	Anna loves him. (She loves him)

Singular subject pronouns that don't get an –s on their verbs	Examples
I	I ride the bus every day.
You	You cook dinner for your mom, don't you?

Plural subject pronouns	Examples
We	We try hard.
They	They buy milk every week.

When thinking about subject-verb agreement, we have to make sure that we have the –s on the simple present verb if the subjects are “it, he or she”.

Activity: Look at the examples taken from the stories below.

1. Identify the subject in the sentences and note what pronoun (it, he, she, they etc.) applies to it.
2. Decide if the subject-verb agreement is correct and correct the verb form if needed.

Answers are in the appendix.

1. They shows 78 people have died from the flu so far this season.
2. Public health officials in Calgary is urging parents to make sure their children are up to date on their immunizations.
3. Judy Macdonald say even though there have been no confirmed cases of measles in Calgary this year; parents needs to remain vigilant.
4. The City want a list of projects ready in the event that the federal or provincial governments creates programs to help stimulate the economy through the current downturn.
5. Mayor Naheed Nenshi says it's good to have a list of projects that are ready to go even though none of them can get started without money from other levels of government.

	FEBRUARY 20 TH WEEKLY NEWS STORIES	TIME
Introduction	Hi, this is Rosa Marchitelli. You're listening to Learning English with CBC for the week of February 20, 2015.	0:00
Story 1	The weekly influenza numbers from Alberta Health Services are out. They show 78 people have died from the flu so far this season. 28 of them are in the Calgary zone. The number of people hospitalized with the flu has remained stable at about 13-hundred.	0:07
Story 2	Public health officials in Calgary are urging parents to make sure their children are up to date on their immunizations for diseases like measles, especially if they're planning to travel during the upcoming spring break. Earlier this year, a number of Canadians fell ill after being exposed to the measles virus during a trip to Disneyland. Doctor Judy Macdonald is Calgary's medical officer of health. She says even though there have been no confirmed cases of measles in Calgary this year; parents need to remain vigilant. Macdonald says parents can phone HealthLink or visit their local public health center to find out whether their children are up to date with their vaccines.	0:27
Story 3	The City wants a list of projects ready in the event that the federal or provincial governments creates programs to help stimulate the economy through the current downturn. A council committee approved a list of possible projects this morning. It includes: 224-million dollars for new C-Train cars and rail line upgrades; a 200 million dollar sports field house at Foothills Athletic Park; and a new arrest-processing unit for the Calgary police. Mayor Naheed Nenshi says it's good to have a list of projects that are ready to go even though none of them can get started without money from other levels of government. The list will be discussed by city council at an upcoming meeting.	1:13
